

The 1999 Edition of The Exit Authority from Interstate America

We first used the Exit Authority in 1997. Although hard to believe, the latest edition is even better.

Like the earlier edition, the 1999 version lists every business within a quarter of a mile from every exit on every interstate highway in the United States plus Canada's Transcontinental Highway. In a very organized format, this publication provides information about where to find services like truck stops, fuel stops, food outlets, lodging, vehicle services, camp grounds, RV service, public parks, banks (ATM locations), medical care, groceries and many other facilities.

The guide identifies exits not only by their number, but also by the mile marker. This is especially useful in states like Pennsylvania and Georgia where the exits are numbered sequentially rather than being consistent with the mile posts. California does not number the exits, so the Exit Authority indicates mileage from the interstate's origin. Another important feature is all areas that can accommodate RV's or buses are highlighted in red. Included in rest area descriptions are whether restrooms, phones, picnic areas, or dump stations are available and if overnight parking is allowed.

Features that have been added to the 1999 Edition include several pages with specific information. These include the following services or businesses located near interstate highways:

- ◆ Dump stations
- ◆ Flying J Truckstops plus an application to get the Flying J, RV (Real Value)

Card. RV Card holders are eligible for discounts on fuel and propane

- ◆ Wal-Mart stores
- ◆ Mapco travel centers

There are also special pages for State Tourism offices; address and phone number listings for national parks; phone numbers for highway road information organized by state; a telephone area code map; coupons for Prime Outlets Shopping Centers; and, of course, a U.S. interstate map.

We have found this publication to be of great value. It is easy to use and allows us to easily find the services we need without having to abandon our planned route.
